They often come with a sheath that can be worn as a pendant, allowing for easy retrieval. But what should you look for when selecting a neck knife? Here are some key factors:

- Blade Material: The material of the blade significantly impacts its durability and performance. Stainless steel and high-carbon steel are common choices, each offering unique benefits.
- Blade Length: Most neck knives feature blades ranging from 2 to 4 inches. Consider the tasks you will perform to determine the appropriate length.
- Sheath Design: A secure and functional sheath is crucial for safety. Look for sheaths that allow for easy access while preventing accidental slips.
